

Addleshaw Goddard traces its roots back to the very first public record of solicitors in the UK – the Law List – published in 1775. It has grown through amalgamation ever since, developing in line with a changing world.

1775-1997

BOOTH & CO

Nicholas Smith founds the firm in 1775, and Samuel Lister Booth is admitted as a solicitor in 1823. The successors of these practices combined over the years to become Booth, Clough & Booth in 1869. Further amalgamations lead to the firm becoming Booth & Co. in c.1936.

1857-1997

ADDLESHAW SONS AND LATHAM

John William Addleshaw begins legal practice in 1857 and enters partnership with William Warburton in 1873. The firm becomes Addleshaw & Sons in 1904, and then Addleshaw Sons & Latham in 1917.

1997-2003

ADDLESHAW BOOTH & CO

Addleshaw Sons & Latham merges with Booth & Co to become Addleshaw Booth & Co.

2012

Addleshaw Goddard opens offices in Singapore, Dubai, Hong Kong, Oman and Qatar.

2019/2021

Addleshaw Goddard opens its first offices in continental Europe, welcoming partners in Hamburg and Paris.

2022

Addleshaw Goddard expands into Ireland by merging with Eugene F. Collins and opens an office in Luxembourg.

2003

ADDLESHAW GODDARD

Addleshaw Booth & Co and Theodore Goddard merge to become Addleshaw Goddard.

2017

Addleshaw Goddard expands into Scotland by merging with HBJ.

1808-2017

HENDERSON BOYD JACKSON

1902-2003

THEODORE GODDARD

John Theodore Goddard founds blue chip, City of London firm, Theodore Goddard in 1902, which grows through amalgamation with other city practices, such as Rhys Roberts & Co (founded in 1883 by future Prime Minister David Lloyd George).

1893-2022

EUGENE F COLLINS

The Firm was founded in November 1893 by Eugene F. Collins, based at Temple Chambers in Dublin.

MORE IMAGINATION MORE IMPACT